1. Medical fitness test

Overseas hires and Resident hires complete a medical fitness test as part of the residence permit process. It is a government-linked step, and PRO (Public Relations Officer, the person who handles government paperwork) confirms the current official requirement with the authorities. In this procedure we only describe what we do.

Qatari nationals do not have this step. If you are a Qatari national, skip to section 3.

1. PRO books your appointment at a clinic approved by the company. We aim to book it for your first week, within five working days of your start date.
2. You attend with your passport (Overseas hires) or QID (Resident hires). Plan for about half a day. The time is paid working time and you do not need to take leave.
3. The clinic sends the result to PRO. PRO tells HR and your manager only one of three outcomes: fit, not fit or further tests needed. No medical details are shared with them.
4. With a "fit" result PRO continues with your QID and residence permit (ONB-02, section 4). With "further tests needed", PRO tells you what happens next and HR supports you. If the result is "not fit", HR speaks to you privately; any decision about your employment is taken by HR and the department head, never by PRO or the clinic.

Your onboarding task list shows this as `MEDICAL_FITNESS`, owned by the PRO team.

2. If you are still abroad

The medical fitness test is done in Qatar after you arrive and has no effect on your flight or your temporary accommodation. Do not arrange a medical test in your home country for us unless PRO asks you to in writing.

3. Group medical insurance

Every Al Dana employee is enrolled in the company's group medical insurance from the start date, whatever the employee type. HR does the enrolment; you only need to check that the name and date of birth on the confirmation email are right. The insurance card normally arrives within ten working days of your start date. Until it arrives, HR can give you a temporary confirmation letter to show at a hospital or clinic.

- In an emergency, go to the nearest hospital first and tell HR the next working day.
- This procedure covers you only. It does not describe cover for family members. Ask HR (hr.onboarding@aldana-group.example) about the options; do not assume that your family is covered.
- The benefits summary in your contract is the final word on what the insurance includes.
